

ation received much attention in the mainstream media during 1981.

2572. KOPAY, DAVID, and PERRY D. YOUNG. The David Kopay Story: An Extraordinary Self-Revelation. New York: Arbor House, 1977. 247 pp.
Kopay describes his Catholic childhood, his career as a professional football player, his unsuccessful marriage, his acceptance of his homosexuality, and the consequences of his public coming out.
2573. LIEBER, JILL, and JERRY KIRSHENBAUM. "Stormy Weather at South Carolina," Sports Illustrated, 56 (February 8, 1982), 30-37.
A former basketball coach is dragged out of the closet.
2574. LORGE, BARRY. "...Women's Tennis and the Feminine Mystique," World Tennis (January 1982), 43-48, 73.
Broader aspects of the role of women in tennis brought to light by the attention bestowed on the Billie Jean King revelations.
2575. MITZEL, JOHN. Sports and the Macho Male. Boston: Fag Rag Books, 1976. 31 pp.
Sharp attack on the cult of sports in contemporary America: "Competitive team athletics are used by macho straight men to concentrate, stereotype, and enforce their superficial heterosexuality."
2576. NAVRATILOVA, MARTINA, and GEORGE VECSEY. Martina. New York: Knopf, 1985.
The star speaks frankly about the emergence of her lesbian feelings in Czechoslovakia and her recent partnerships.
2577. SMITH, MICHAEL J. "The Double Life of a Gay Dodger," Inside Sports (October 1982), 57-63.
Sympathetic account of a black California athlete, who lived two lives for six years, one as a professional ballplayer, the other as a homosexual.
2578. SUÁREZ-OROZCO, MARCELO. "A Study of Argentine Soccer: The Dynamics of Its Fans and Their Folklore," Journal of Psychoanalytic Anthropology, 5 (1982), 7-28.
Suggests that the popularity of soccer among Argentine men is owing to their need for a therapeutic outlet for taboo thoughts and fears of homosexuality and emasculation.
2579. THOMPSON, MARK et al. "The Western Range," Advocate, no. 315 (April 16, 1981), T11-14.
On gay cowboys and rodeos.

D. ETIQUETTE AND SELF-HELP

In keeping with the older stereotype of homosexual men as aping feminine manners, they were thought to be particularly concerned with the cultivation of refinements of etiquette--a notion that has been exploited by Quentin Crisp, among others. Apart from this older notion of special sensitivity, it has recently become clear that differences in lifestyle may require alterations or special inflections of social prescriptions. Moreover, the dispensing of useful advice regarding behavior to homosexuals cannot escape dealing with the consequences of internalized self-contempt. The newer manuals therefore deal not solely with interpersonal concerns, but with the cultivation of a respectful self-image.

2580. CLARK, DON. Loving Someone Gay. New York: New American Library, 1978. 274 pp.
California clinical psychologist seeks to show "how gays can give support to one another, shed guilt, form meaningful relationships, gain self-respect, and grow stronger." The book also "helps families, friends, and caring non-gays to confront their own fears and prejudices." See also his: Living Gay (Millbrae, CA: Celestial Arts, 1979; 192 pp.).
2581. CRISP, QUENTIN. How to Have a Lifestyle. New York: Methuen, 1979. 178 pp.
A series of aphorisms and amusing anecdotes, rather than strictly a guide. One of several short books by the English eccentric extending material from his stage presentations.
2582. CURZON, DANIEL. The Joyful Blue Book of Gracious Gay Etiquette. San Francisco: D. Brown Books, 1980. 115 pp.
Campy and serious reflections by the noted gay novelist. See also: Kevin Michaels, The Gay Book of Etiquette (New York: MLP Enterprises, 1982; 72 pp.).
2583. D'ARCANGELO, ANGELO (pseud. of Joseph Busch). The Homosexual Handbook. New York: Ophelia Press, 1968. 281 pp.
Offered as "a clearly written guide to homosexual pleasure and practice, full of 'helpful hints,' advice and diagrammatic explanation." An amusingly outrageous work now redolent of the atmosphere of the incipient post-Stonewall era.
2584. GITECK, LENNY. Cruising to Win: A Guide for Gay Men. San Francisco: Pnatera Press, 1982. 250 pp.
An Advocate editor's breezy guide to making out and afterwards; a kind of hard sell of the "you deserve to give yourself these pleasures" genre. Some will find the mood of carefree enjoyment unsuited to the AIDS era.

2585. GOODSTEIN, DAVID. Superliving: You Can Have the Life You Want! Englewood Cliffs, NJ: Prentice-Hall, 1983. 202 pp.
Advice, esp. on financial independence, by the late tycoon and Advocate owner, with biographical asides.

2586. LOOVIS, DAVID. Gay Spirit: A Guide to Becoming a Sensuous Homosexual. New York: Strawberry Hill/Grove Press, 1974. 171 pp.
Generally sensible advice about becoming more sensuous, as well as dressing, cruising, sexual techniques, and keeping a lover. Although the period flavor is there, this book has held up surprisingly well.

2589. MARSAN, HUGO. Un homme, un homme. Paris: Autrement, 1983. 192 pp.
Readable, somewhat lightweight exposition of the middle-of-the-road approach to gay life supported by the Gai pied editorial group.

2590. MUCHMORE, WES, and WILLIAM HANSON. Coming Out Right: A Handbook for the Gay Male. Boston: Alyson, 1982. 200 pp.
A basic and usable work for the truly inexperienced: how to get up your courage to enter a gay bar, how to converse, turn someone down tactfully, etc. See also the sequel: Coming Along Fine: Today's Gay Man and His World (Boston: Alyson, 1986; 149 pp.).

2591. SIEMS, MARTIN. Coming Out: Hilfen zur homosexuellen Emanzipation. Reinbek bei Hamburg: Rowohlt, 1980. 237 pp.
Advice by a homosexual therapist on self-acceptance, recommending yoga exercises and encounter groups.

E. SEXUAL TECHNIQUES: MALE

In late Victorian times, as it came to be recognized that the mass of the population was woefully ignorant of sexual techniques--including contraceptive methods--the first cautious manuals began to appear. In the 1920s these works became more explicit and more freely available, but they did not address the needs of homosexuals. To do so would have been regarded as patently pornographic, and in fact the first attempts (not recorded here) were illustrated exploitation brochures sold, as often as not, under the counter. There is now a considerable range of genuine works in this field. Also included here are some studies on the symbolism and physiology of the penis, of particular (though not exclusive) interest to gay men. For medical problems that may be associated with male homosexual behavior, see XXII.A-C.

2592. BARTON-JAY, DAVID. The Enema as an Erotic Art and Its History. Second ed. New York: The author, 1984. 329 pp.

Illustrated omnium gatherum compiled by an enthusiast.

2593. BERKELEY, BUD, and JOE TIFFENBACH. Foreskin: Its Past, Its Present & ... Its Future? San Francisco: Bud Berkeley, 1983. 208 pp.

Illustrated survey, including personal testimonies, intended for those with an erotic or other preference for the uncut. For a strong condemnation of the practice, with many individual testimonies, see Rosemary Romberg, Circumcision: The Painful Dilemma (South Hadley, MA: Bergin and Garvey, 1985; 435 pp.).

2594. DEMARTINO, MANFRED F. Human Autoerotic Practices. New York: Human Sciences Press, 1979. 378 pp.

Reprints 21 papers on masturbation in both men and women, by such writers as Alex Comfort, Havelock Ellis, Helen Singer Kaplan, and Masters and Johnson, with concluding comment by the editor. In contrast to earlier scares, these papers are generally approving of the practice. Bibliography, pp. 361-66. See also Robert E. L. Masters (ed.), Sexual Self-Stimulation (Los Angeles: Sherbourne, 1967; 352 pp.); and Irving Sarnoff and Suzanne Sarnoff, Masturbation and Adult Sexuality (New York: Evans, 1985; 336 pp.).

2595. FOURNIER, R. A. The Intelligent Man's Guide to Handball (The Sexual Sport). New York: The author, 1983. 69 pp.

Advocacy pamphlet on anal penetration with the fist--now recognized to be a very dangerous practice. See also Angus MacKenzie, "Lust with a Very Proper Stranger," Body Politic, no. 82 (April 1982), 50-51; and J. Morin, below.

2596. FREEDMAN, MARK, and HARVEY MAYES. Loving Man: A Photographic Guide to Gay Male Lovemaking. New York: Hark Publishing Co., 1976. 132 pp.

Clear and comprehensive account of positions and pleasures, illustrated with photographs by Edd Dundas.

2597. LEGMAN, GERSHON. Orogenitalism. New York: Julian Press, 1969. 320 pp.

Chapter 2, "Fellatio" (pp. 169-245), purports to incorporate a "practical treatise" translated from a French manuscript, as the author claims that his aversion to the subject prevented direct treatment. As with all of Legman's work, there is some psychoanalytic overinterpretation.

2598. MORIN, JACK. Anal Pleasure and Health: Guide for Men and Women. Burlingame, CA: Down There Press,