THYMOS is a peer-reviewed journal devoted to providing an interdisciplinary forum for critical discussion of boyhood and the dissemination of current research and reflections on boy lives to a broad, cross-disciplinary audience of teachers and scholars, researchers and health-care practitioners, and policy-makers. The topics of the journal will include boys and schooling, boys and feminism, parenting boys, son-father relations and the effect on boys of the missing father, boys and subcultures and sexualities, physical and emotional abuse of boys, portrayal of boys in the media, boys in sports, and the folklore and myths of boyhood. THYMOS solicits manuscripts from a variety of disciplines, including sociology, developmental psychology, sexology, psychoanalytic study of ethnicity and ethnicity, history and historiography, cultural studies, literature, philosophy, pedagogy, and clinical and community health-care practice.

THYMOS publishes regular articles (7,500 to 8,500 words) and brief reports (2,500 to 3,500 words) and invites submissions of scholarly articles and essays dealing with all aspects of boy lives. Authors should prepare manuscripts according to the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (6th ed., 2010). Formatting instructions and instructions on preparation of abstracts, text with designated headers (A-level through C-level), references, tables and figures appear in the Manual. THYMOS, θυμός, is ancient Greek for the astral, animal soul, the "human heart" (Pascal), and spirituality. It is sometimes full of righteous anger, even rage and frenzy. Like boyhood and its features, the organ in our body called the stomach will have largely vanished at the advent of adulthood.
